REPLY MEMORANDUM OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

PREET BHARARA
United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

The Government respectfully submits this reply memorandum in response to the Defendant Stephen Walsh's ("Walsh") Pre-Hearing Memorandum and Opposition To The Government's Motion to Quash Subpoenas ("Defense Mem."). Presently pending before the Court are two legal issues. First, is a defendant precluded from compelling cooperating witnesses to testify at a Monsanto hearing where the Second Circuit expressly stated that its ruling precludes the exposure of cooperating witnesses. United States v. Monsanto, 924 F.2d 1186, 1198 (2d Cir. 1991)(en banc). Second, is a defendant's interest in real property traceable to a fraud where the defendant misappropriated investor funds to satisfy his obligations under a separation and divorce agreement and, in exchange, received, among other things, sole ownership of the real property at issue. The Government submits that both of these questions should be answered in the affirmative.

These issues were addressed at a Conference on March 23, 2011, at which time the Court fixed a briefing schedule and set a Conference for April 15, 2011. The Government submits that the resolution of these legal issues in advance of the Monsanto hearing will significantly aid the progress of this case and will be of tremendous assistance in framing the issues for the hearing.

ARGUMENT

I. The Defendant Cannot Use The Monsanto Hearing As A Dress Rehearsal For The Trial

The sole issue at the Monsanto hearing is whether defendant Stephen Walsh ("Walsh") may use the proceeds of the sale of his residence at 7 Half Moon Lane, Sands Point,

New York ("Half Moon Lane Home") to pay his attorneys' fees in the criminal case. This Court (Cedarbaum and Daniels, D.JJ.), previously held that Walsh could use $900,000 of the proceeds of the sale of the Half Moon Lane Home to pay his attorneys' fees, unless the Government established at a Monsanto hearing (a) probable cause to believe that Walsh had committed the fraud charged in the indictment; and (b) that the Half Moon Lane Home is properly restrained because his interest in the house is traceable to the fraud. Because the Court limited Walsh's recovery to a fixed amount ($900,000), the Government chose not to pursue the hearing. Since that ruling, the Half Moon Lane Home has been sold for approximately $4 million and the defense has applied to the Court to make all of the net proceeds from the sale of the Half Moon Lane Home (approximately $3.8 million) available to pay Walsh's legal fees and expenses in the criminal case. Because the Government believes that the amount sought for fees is unreasonable and that the proceeds of the sale of the Half Moon Lane Home should be preserved for the benefit of the victims, the Government has exercised its right to have a Monsanto hearing to maintain the asset freeze on the net proceeds in excess of the $900,000 already ordered for the defense.

Prior to the scheduled date for the hearing, the Government advised the defense that it would call Federal Bureau of Investigation ("FBI") Special Agent James C. Barnacle, Jr., who was involved in the investigation, to summarize the Government's proof through hearsay testimony. The Government also identified the exhibits it intended to offer and provided 3500 material for Agent Barnacle. Thereafter, the defense served subpoenas on Paul Greenwood ("Greenwood"), Deborah Duffy ("Duffy"), and Brick Kane ("Kane"). Greenwood and Duffy have each pleaded guilty, pursuant to cooperation agreements, to criminal charges relating to the fraud at WG Trading Company L.P. (“WG Trading”), WG Trading Investors LP (“WG Investors”), and related entities controlled by Greenwood and Walsh. Kane is the Chief Operating Officer of Robb Evans & Co., L.L.C., which has been appointed by Judge Daniels to serve as the Court-appointed receiver over WG Trading, WG Investors, and the related entities (the “Receiver”).

The Government moved to quash the subpoenas on the grounds that:

(1) Monsanto precluded the defendant from serving subpoenas on the Government’s cooperating witnesses; and (2) the defense had not established the relevance of the testimony that it seeks to elicit from Kane.

As the defense recognizes, the issue of whether the defendant may subpoena the cooperating witnesses boils down to the interpretation of Monsanto. The defense argues that Monsanto requires a full-blown adversarial hearing at which the defendant can subpoena and cross-examine the Government’s cooperating witnesses. (Defense Mem. 8-11). The defense misapprehends the nature of the hearing set forth in Monsanto and improperly seeks to convert the Monsanto hearing into a preview of the trial.

In United States v. Monsanto, 924 F.2d 1186, the Second Circuit concluded that, in a case involving a criminal asset freeze, “the fifth and sixth amendments, considered in combination, require an adversary, post-restraint, pretrial hearing as to probable cause that (a) the defendant committed crimes that provide a basis for forfeiture, and (b) the properties specified as forfeitable in the indictment are properly forfeitable, to continue a restraint of assets (i) needed to retain counsel of choice and (ii) ordered ex parte.” 924 F.2d at 1203.

By its terms, the scope of the hearing is quite limited. At the hearing, the Government is only required to demonstrate “probable cause” that the crime has been committed and that the restrained asset is properly forfeitable (or, in this case, traceable to the fraud). This burden is not heavy. Indeed, the Second Circuit has stated that “[p]robable cause is established if the government can show that it has reasonable grounds, more than mere suspicion, to believe that the property is subject to forfeiture.” In re the Seizure of All Funds in Accounts in the Names Registry Publishing, 68 F.3d 577, 580 (2d Cir. 1995) (quoting Marine Midland Bank, N.A. v. United States, 11 F.3d 1119, 1126 (2d Cir.1993)). As this Court observed at the March 23, 2011 Conference, the Government routinely demonstrates probable cause through an agent’s sworn statements that recite what he or she has learned from witnesses or from the review of documents. (March 23, 2011 Tr. 6). Indeed, in this case, Magistrate Judge Eton found probable cause based upon Agent Barnacle’s complaint, and a Grand Jury found probable cause (and returned an indictment) based upon Agent Barnacle’s testimony. We have little doubt that this Court will find that there is “more than mere suspicion” to believe that Walsh committed the charged crimes after Agent Barnacle testifies at the Monsanto hearing.

The defense disregards the critical language in Monsanto where the Court stressed that its determination that the Rules of Evidence not apply at the probable cause hearing thus “precluding the unwarranted exposure of Government witnesses.” Monsanto, 924 F.2d at 1198, 1199. Rather, the defense relies upon the Monsanto court’s statement that the Government cannot rely upon the fact of a Grand Jury indictment to establish probable cause, as a basis for its efforts to enlarge the hearing. That reliance is misplaced. The court in Monsanto rejected the Government’s argument that the indictment by itself must be regarded as conclusively establishing probable cause that the defendant committed the charged offense, finding that the grand jury’s determinations of probable cause can be reexamined at the hearing. 924 F.2d at 1203. However, by holding that hearsay is admissible at the hearing, 924 F.2d at 1198, 1203, the Second Circuit specifically framed a limited hearing that would be similar to a grand jury proceeding, i.e., the Government would call an agent to describe the results of his investigation, but the Court would determine whether the evidence presented established probable cause. See also United States v. Daccarett, 6 F.3d 37, 56 (2d Cir. 1991) (in a forfeiture context, “[a] finding of probable cause may be based on hearsay, even hearsay from confidential informants, or circumstantial evidence, particularly in cases involving bank accounts, money, or other fungible assets”)(citations omitted); Oyekoya v. United States, 175 F. Supp. 2d 522, 525 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (a finding of probable cause may be based on hearsay and circumstantial evidence).

The defense also relies upon a statement in Monsanto that the evidentiary hearing the Court was envisioning should be governed by the procedures set forth in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65 as support for the defense efforts to enlarge the scope of the hearing. (Defense Mem. 7). This argument does not support the effort to subpoena the cooperating witnesses. The Second Circuit has recently confirmed that a preliminary injunction hearing under Rule 65 is less formal than a full-blown trial and that a district court may rely upon hearsay evidence in determining whether a preliminary injunction is warranted. Mullins v. City of New York, 626 F.3d 47, 51-52 (2d Cir. 2010). The Court stated:

We agree with these courts and conclude that hearsay evidence may be considered by a district court in determining whether to grant a preliminary injunction. The admissibility of hearsay under the Federal Rules of Evidence goes to weight, not preclusion, at the preliminary injunction stage. To hold otherwise would be at odds with the summary nature of the remedy and would undermine the ability of courts to provide timely provisional relief.

Id. at 52 (citing cases); see also March 23, 2011 Tr. 30 (observing that affidavits are routinely used at preliminary injunction hearings). Thus, the rule relied upon by the defense supports the Government's position that it may make its showing through the testimony of Agent Barnacle concerning the results of his investigation.

Contrary to the defendant's protests, the scope of the hearing proposed by the Government does not render it a "one-sided affair." The hearing envisioned in Monsanto provides significant procedural benefits to the defendant. First, the hearing is in open court and the defendant may be present. Second, the Court must reconsider the question of probable cause, and is not bound by the determination of the Grand Jury. 924 F.2d at 1196-97, 1203. Third, the defendant is free to cross-examine the agent and make arguments as to why the Government has failed to meet its burden. Fourth, the defendant can testify and call witnesses (other than the Government's cooperating witnesses) on his behalf.¹ What Monsanto does not allow, however, is for the defense to subpoena the Government's cooperating witnesses solely for impeachment purposes.

As the Court requested, we have attempted to identify other Monsanto hearings that have been held in this district. We have located a case before Judge Patterson where such a hearing was held, United States v. Jon Okenfus, 96 Cr. 565 (RPP). On July 31, 1996, Jon Okenfus, and others, were charged in a superseding indictment with narcotics conspiracy, marijuana distribution, and firearms violations in connection with their participation in a large-scale marijuana distribution operation. The superseding indictment included forfeiture allegations. On August 6, 1996, Judge Patterson entered a an order restraining certain real and personal properties of Okenfus believed to constitute and/or derive from proceeds of narcotics activity. Among other things, the order restrained funds that had been transferred by Okenfus from a bank account that he controlled to his attorney for attorney's fees, which funds were alleged to be drug proceeds.² The Government consented to a Monsanto hearing, which took place over a period of days from September 12, 1996 to September 17, 1996. At the hearing, the Government called a DEA Special Agent (who summarized the Government's proof through hearsay testimony) and the defense called an associate of defense counsel (who testified about her interviews with certain individuals). The issue before this Court, namely, whether the defense can compel the testimony of the Government's cooperating witnesses at a Monsanto hearing, was extensively litigated and debated before Judge Patterson. (9/4/1996 Tr. 20-30; 9/10/1996 Tr. 2-17, 22-29, 32-38; 9/12/1996 Tr. 4-6, 93-94; 9/13/1996 Tr. 126-37, 186-87; 9/17/1996 Tr. 206-18, 275-77, 284). At the end, however, the hearing proceeded with Government offering only the agent's testimony and Judge Patterson expressly declined to order the production of the cooperating witnesses.³ (9/17/1996 Tr. 284).

It follows that the defendant's subpoenas to Greenwood and Duffy should be

² On August 9 and August 16, 1996, the restraining orders were amended to reflect certain transfers of the funds from the attorney's account and because funds from an unrelated client were being restrained by the order.

³ It appears from the docket sheet that Judge Patterson never actually ruled on the Monsanto issues before him. We understand that the matter was eventually resolved through an agreement of the parties. Because the material related to this matter are voluminous, we are not attaching them as exhibits. We are simultaneously providing the Court and the defense with binders containing relevant transcripts and materials.

quashed. With respect to the subpoena to Kane, the defense should articulate the relevance of the testimony it seeks to elicit.

II. Walsh's Acquisition Of The Half Moon Lane Home Pursuant To The Separation Agreement

As discussed at the March 23, 2011 Conference, the Government intends to establish that Walsh's interest in the Half Moon Lane Home is traceable to the fraud because Walsh directed that $6.1 million in funds be transferred to directly out of the WG Investors bank account to his ex-wife as part of the divorce settlement in which Walsh obtained full ownership of that house. (March 23, 2011 Tr. 22-24, 34). The facts concerning this issue cannot seriously be disputed. The terms of the divorce settlement are set forth in an unambiguous written agreement and the funds were transferred directly from the WG Investors bank account to Walsh's former wife. The parties have raised this issue at this juncture because a ruling by the Court in advance of the hearing could materially impact the scope of the hearing.

On November 1, 2006, Walsh and his former wife Janet Walsh, now know as Janet Schaberg ("Schaberg"), entered into a "Stipulation of Settlement and Agreement" (the "Agreement"), which was intended to confirm their separation, to settle all claims raised in a pending divorce action, and to settle and adjust all issues between them, including all rights to support and maintenance and their respective rights in all property owned by either of them. (A copy of the Agreement is attached to the January 14, 2010 Declaration of Brick Kane ("Kane Dec.") at Exhibit G).

The Agreement was incorporated but not merged into the judgment of divorce and is intended to be independently binding on both parties. (Agreement ¶¶ 12.1 to 12.3). Various recitals and other provisions of the Agreement confirm that (1) neither party was coerced or pressured into executing the Agreement (Agreement Art. XIII); (2) each party was represented by independent counsel (id. at Art. XIII and XVI); (3) the Agreement is the “complete and entire Agreement of the parties” (id. at ¶ 18.3); and (4) each of the respective rights and obligations of the parties were independently enforceable. (Id. at ¶ 18.9). The Agreement is governed by New York law. (Id. at ¶ 18.4).

As the defense concedes, the Agreement provides for the equitable distribution of the various assets accumulated by the parties during their marriage and resolves all of their financial issues. The assets included real property (Agreement ¶¶ 4.5 to 4.7), personal property and household effects (Agreement ¶¶ 3.1 to 3.6), bank accounts (id. at ¶ 4.13), automobiles (id. at ¶ 4.15), annuities and life insurance policies (id. at ¶ 4.13, 7.2 to 7.6), and each of their respective business interests. (Id. at ¶ 4.8 to 4.12). The Agreement generally provided that neither party would pay maintenance to the other, but that Walsh would provide medical insurance for Schaberg and would maintain various life insurance policies and a life insurance trust for the benefit of Schaberg. (Agreement ¶¶ 5.1, 5.2, 7.1 to 7.6). In light of the division of assets, each party released the other from any and all future claims that may arise as a consequence of their marital relationship. (Agreement ¶¶ 4.3, 4.4, 10.1 to 10.4, Art. IX, XI). See generally CFTC v. Walsh, 618 F.3d 218, 222 (2d Cir. 2010)(describing terms of the agreement).

Walsh represented that his business interests included the following: (1) an interest in WG Trading Investors LP equal to 50% of the net profit; (2) a 37% interest in WGQ LLC; (3) a .16% interest in WGI, LLC, and a 94% interest in SAM Group LLC. (Agreement ¶ 4.8). Pursuant to Section 4.10 of the Agreement, Walsh agreed to pay Schaberg, over time, a distributive award of $12,500,000 (Agreement ¶ 4.10(a)), and agreed to take various measures to guarantee the payment of the distributive award. These provisions included execution of a promissory note and a confession of judgment for the unpaid balance upon default (Agreement ¶ 4.10(d)), an agreement that the distributive award payment would not be dischargeable in bankruptcy (id. at ¶ 4.10(e)), the acquisition of a life insurance policy to ensure that distributive award would be paid if he died (id. at ¶ 7.1), and a mortgage on the Half Moon Lane Home for $25,000. (Agreement ¶ 4.5(e)).

With respect to the Half Moon Lane Home, the Agreement provided that “[Schaberg] is presently the owner of a house located at 7 Half Moon Lane, Sands Point, New York (the ‘Marital Residence’)” and that “[Schaberg] will convey all of her right, title and interest in the Marital property to [Walsh].” (Agreement ¶¶ 4.5(a)-(b)).⁴ Significantly, as noted above, the Agreement also provided that “as partial security for [Walsh’s] obligation to pay [Schaberg] pursuant to paragraph 4.10 ‘The Wife’s Distributive Award and The Husband’s Business Interests’, in addition to the security provided in Paragraph 4.10(d), [Walsh] agrees to execute and deliver, simultaneously with the execution of this Agreement, a mortgage and mortgage note in favor of [Schaberg] (the ‘Mortgage’) in the sum of $25,000 on the Marital Residence.” (Agreement ¶ 4.5(e)).

⁴ The Government does not disagree with Walsh’s argument that, although it was titled in Schaberg’s name, the Half Moon Lane Home was a joint asset under N.Y. Domestic Relations Law § 236. That circumstance is irrelevant here because “a separation agreement can serve as a conveyance from the marital estate to divorcing individuals within the meaning of New York Real Property Law § 290(3), which defines ‘conveyance’ to include ‘every written instrument, by which any estate or interest in real property is created.’” CFTC v. Walsh, 618 F.3d at 227-28 (citing FDIC v. Malin, 802 F.2d 12, 17 (2d Cir. 1986)). Here, Walsh received sole title to the home pursuant to the Agreement in exchange for the consideration that he bestowed to Schaberg. In other words, Walsh bought out her interest in the home.

Under New York law, the terms of a separation agreement “incorporated but not merged into a judgment of divorce operate as contractual obligations binding on the parties.” Gravlin v. Ruppert, 98 N.Y.2d 1, 5, 743 N.Y.S.2d 773, 775, 770 N.E.2d 561, 563 (2002). Thus, “[a] matrimonial settlement is a contract subject to principles of contract interpretation ... [and] a court should interpret the contract in accordance with its plain and ordinary meaning.” Herzfeld v. Herzfeld, 50 A.D.3d 851, 851, 857 N.Y.S.2d 170, 170-71 (2d Dep’t 2008) (quoting Edwards v. Poulmentis, 307 A.D.2d 1051, 1052, 763 N.Y.S.2d 677 (2d Dep’t 2008)). The interpretation of a contract, and the determination of whether the contract is clear or ambiguous, is a matter of law for the court to determine. See W.W.W. Associates, Inc. v. Giancontieri, 77 N.Y.2d 157, 162, 566 N.E.2d 639, 642, 565 N.Y.S.2d 440, 443 (1990); 805 Third Ave. Co. v. M.W. Realty Assoc., 58 N.Y.2d 447, 451, 461 N.Y.S.2d 778, 780, 448 N.E.2d 445, 447 (1983). “[W]hen interpreting a contract, the court should arrive at a construction which will give fair meaning to all of the language employed by the parties to reach a practical interpretation of the expressions of the parties so that their reasonable expectations will be realized.” Joseph v. Creek & Pines, 217 A.D.2d 534, 535, 629 N.Y.S.2d 75, 76 (2d Dep’t 1995); Partrick v. Guariniere, 204 A.D.2d 702, 704, 612 N.Y.S.2d 630, 632 (2d Dep’t 1994). Where a matrimonial settlement “is clear and unambiguous on its face, the parties’ intent must be construed from the four corners of the agreement, and not from extrinsic evidence.” Herzfeld v. Herzfeld, 50 A.D.3d at 851-852, 857 N.Y.S.2d at 171. See also W.W.W. Associates, Inc. v. Giancontieri, 77 N.Y.2d at 162, 566 N.E.2d at 642, 565 N.Y.S.2d at 443 (“A familiar and eminently sensible proposition of law is that, when parties set down their agreement in a clear, complete document, their writing should as a rule be enforced according to its terms.”) Further, it is a basic principle that a contract must be viewed as a whole. See United States v. Hamdi, 432 F.3d 115, 123 (2d Cir. 2005) (Sotomayor, CJ); Green Point Sav. Bank v. Central Gardens Unit No. 1, 279 A.D. 1078, 112 N.Y.S.2d 371 (2d Dep't 1952)(citations omitted).

The Government's contention is that by the plain language of the Agreement, Walsh received, among other things, sole ownership of the Half Moon Lane Home, in exchange for consideration consisting of, among other things, a large cash payment totaling $12.5 million. The contract, viewed as a whole, clearly provides for the transfer of ownership of the home to Walsh and at the same time requires Walsh to make large cash payments over a period of years to Schaberg. The fact that these mutual transfers are made pursuant to the same instrument proves that Walsh's acquisition of sole ownership of the home is traceable to the misappropriated investor funds transferred to Schaberg.

The Government's interpretation is buttressed by the circumstances that Walsh and Schaberg acted consistently with the Government's interpretation of the Agreement. Walsh continued to reside in the Half Moon Lane Home and Schaberg conveyed her interest in the home to Walsh. Walsh filed a deed with the Nassau County Clerk on or about December 21, 2006, after the Agreement was finalized, reflecting his sole ownership of the property.

Walsh made payments to Schaberg as required by the Agreement. The Agreement specifically required that from July 1, 2006 through June 30, 2016, Walsh would pay $1,000,000 per year in $500,000 installments in January and June of each year. (Agreement ¶ 4.10(a)(i)). Records of a brokerage account in the name of WG Trading Investors reflect that $500,000 payments to be made from WG Trading Investors to Schaberg on the following dates: January 8, 2007, July 6, 2007, January 8, 2008, July 8, 2008, and January 8, 2009, for a total of $2,500,000.

(Kane Dec. ¶ 12). These payments were made at Walsh's direction and are included in the promissory notes that Walsh signed each year in favor of WG Trading Investors.

In addition, the records of the brokerage account in the name of WG Investors further reflect that funds in the amount of $100,000 were transferred to Janet Walsh on June 1, 2006, June 30, 2006, August 3, 2006, September 1, 2006, September 29, 2006, and November 1, 2006, for a total during those time periods of $600,000. (Id.; compare Agreement ¶ 4.10(a)(iii) (“[Walsh] shall be given credit toward his obligation under subparagraph (a)(i) for payments which have been made in the sum of $100,000 on or about July 10, 2006, August 10, 2006, September 10, 2006, and October 10, 2006 and such other payments thereafter made prior to the signing of this stipulation.”).⁵

Walsh argues that “the Government asks the Court to ignore the: (1) substantial detail in the divorce agreement; (2) many and varied assets and properties that were addressed in the global settlement that divorce agreement documents; and (3) policy behind New York’s Domestic Relations Law.” Defense Mem. 13-14. The defense seems to suggest that, because there were multiple items of consideration in the agreement, it cannot be said that the payments toward the distributive award were in consideration of the agreement by Schaberg to transfer her interest in the Half Moon Lane Home to Walsh. This argument lacks merit. “It is, literally, hornbook law that one consideration will support multiple promises.” Raghavendra v. Trustees of Columbia University, 686 F. Supp. 2d 332, 345 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) (citing John P. Calamari, Joseph M. Perillo, Contracts, § 4-15 (6th ed. 2009)). Although the Agreement provided for multiple promises on both sides, when viewed as a whole, it plainly provided for Walsh to make payments to Schaberg and for Schaberg to relinquish her interest in the Half Moon Lane Home to Walsh. Walsh’s argument suggests that the Court should require that the Agreement contain some express statement that the cash was in exchange for the house. That argument, however, is too narrow a reading of the contract.⁶

Moreover, in any event, there is a provision in the Agreement that directly ties the transfer of the Half Moon Lane Home to the payment of the distributive award. Paragraph 4.5 of the Agreement – which directly relates to the transfer of the Half Moon Lane Home – provides that “as partial security for [Walsh’s] obligation to pay the wife pursuant to Paragraph 4.10” Walsh will agree to a mortgage on the property. (Agreement ¶ 4.5(e)(i)). This provision is extremely significant because, contrary to the defense arguments, it plainly manifests the parties’ intent that the transfer of the home is in partial consideration for Walsh’s payment of the distributive award. Thus, the mortgage directly ties Walsh’s acquisition of the Half Moon Lane Home to his payments to Schaberg. Indeed, Schaberg’s counsel asserted her rights pursuant to this mortgage in an application to Judge Daniels in connection with the Receiver's sale of the property. (A copy of a February 8, 2011 letter from Schaberg's counsel to Judge Daniels is attached as Exhibit A).

⁶ The defense attempts to ascribe significance to the fact that the payments were made pursuant to Section 4.10 of the Agreement, which is entitled “the Wife’s Distributive Award and the Husband’s Business Interests,” for the argument that the payments were limited to the division of Walsh’s business interests. This argument fails because it attempts to segregate the various promises in the Agreement instead of viewing it as a whole. Moreover, reliance on the paragraph heading is misguided because the Agreement itself provides that “[t]he paragraph headings in this Agreement are for convenience only and do not reflect any intent or agreement of the parties.” (Agreement ¶ 18.1).

Based on the foregoing incontestable facts, Government expects to show that Walsh's acquisition of sole ownership of the Half Moon Lane Home in 2006 pursuant to the Agreement is traceable to the fraud because he used misappropriated investor funds to make payments to Schaberg pursuant to the terms of the Agreement. Because the Agreement is unambiguous, this issue is one of contract interpretation. In order to make the hearing more efficient, we respectfully request that the Court rule on the legal issue of contract interpretation in advance of the hearing.⁷

⁷ We note that the defense relies in part upon the circumstance that, pursuant to the Agreement, Schaberg received, among other things, sole ownership of ALZLIFE, LLC, d/b/a "Memory Concepts ("ALZLIFE"), which the defense describes as "her business" and asserts that it "had no functional relationship to the business of WG or its related entities." (Defense Mem. 15). As described above, the fact that Schaberg received consideration in addition to the cash payments does not alter the conclusion that Walsh acquired full ownership of the home in exchange for a bundle of consideration that included the cash payments. It is interesting, however, to note that the records of the WG Investors brokerage account indicate that from on or about June 9, 2005 through on or about December 12, 2005, approximately $586,087 was transferred to ALZLIFE.

CONCLUSION

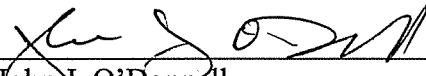

For the reasons set forth above, and in its prior submissions, the Government requests that the Court find that the Government has established that there is probable cause to believe that Walsh's interest in the Half Moon Lane Home is traceable to the fraud charged in the Indictment.

 09-CV-1749 (GBD)
 Securities & Exchange Comm'n v. WG Trading Inv., L.P., et al.
 09-CV-1750 (GBD)

Dear Judge Daniels:

As counsel for relief defendant Janet Schaberg in the referenced proceedings, we write regarding the letter application of Craig A. Welin, Esq., counsel for the Receiver in the referenced proceedings, dated January 28, 2011, and endorsed by this Court on February 1, 2011 ("the Letter"). The Letter authorizes the $4 million sale of real property at 7 Half Moon Lane, Sands Point, New York ("the Property"), and addresses several related issues, including one that affects Ms. Schaberg.

Ms. Schaberg has a Mortgage on the Property: Mr. Welin notes that Ms. Schaberg has a lien in the amount of $25,000.00 against the Property. Letter at 2. In fact, it is more than a mere lien. It is a first mortgage on the Property. Pursuant to the Walshes' November 1, 2006 Property Settlement, Mr. Walsh executed "a mortgage and mortgage note in favor of [Ms. Schaberg] . . . in the sum of $25,000" against the Property as additional security for his obligation to make $12.5 million in distributive award payments during a 15-year period. Property Settlement, ¶ 4.5(3)(i) ("the Mortgage and Mortgage Note"). The Mortgage was duly executed and recorded. Copies of the recorded Mortgage, the Mortgage Note and the relevant provisions of the Property Settlement were provided to Mr. Welin in conjunction with our November 16, 2010 correspondence and copied to this Court. A copy of this correspondence and documentation is attached.

The Receiver refuses to honor the Ms. Schaberg's valid Mortgage: Although Ms. Schaberg provided Mr. Welin with the necessary documentation verifying the Mortgage and Mortgage Note, and no party has challenged the validity of the Mortgage, the Note or any of the associated legal documentation, the Receiver would not agree to release those funds to Ms. Schaberg upon the sale of the Property. Instead, the Receiver apparently secured the title company's consent to close 'subject to' the Mortgage and Mortgage Note. Thus, sale proceeds attributable to twice the amount of the Mortgage and Mortgage Note are reportedly being withheld "pending a determination of Ms. Schaberg's entitlement to the withheld funds." Letter at 2. Yet, as the attached documentation demonstrates and as the Letter (and the title company's actions) implicitly acknowledge, the Mortgage and Mortgage Note are valid.

There is no reason to delay "a determination of Ms. Schaberg's entitlement" to the proceeds of the Mortgage and Mortgage Note. For the following reasons, Ms. Schaberg's application should be granted, releasing those funds to her immediately.

The Mortgage is not restrained: As the Court is aware, the Mortgage is not encompassed by the Court's August 4, 2009 Decision and related Orders ("the Orders"), which restrained only specific accounts in Ms. Schaberg's name. The Orders do not restrain any secured interest Ms. Schaberg may have in real property owned by others. As a result, the funds represented by the Mortgage constitute neither frozen funds nor appreciation on frozen funds. Thus, the Court need not modify the Orders to grant the relief requested herein and the Court's jurisdiction to rule on this application remains unaffected by Ms. Schaberg's pending appeal from the Orders. Accordingly, there is no procedural or jurisdictional impediment to granting the relief sought herein.

The funds secured by the Mortgage are untainted: While a substantial portion of the funds involved in this proceeding are alleged to be tainted, there is a significant exception to that – the Property. On March 9, 2010, this Court, together with Judge Cedarbaum, issued a Decision and Order provisionally granting the motions of defendants Walsh and Greenwood to release certain restrained funds for the payment of attorneys' fees for counsel of their choosing. CFTC v. Walsh, 2010 WL 882875 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 9, 2010) (Daniels & Cedarbaum, JJ.) ("the Decision").

Hon. George B. Daniels
February 8, 2011

The Decision found that Walsh had established prima facie that the Property "was purchased in 1999 with proceeds from the sale of another property which he purchased prior to the time period of the alleged fraud." Specifically, the Decision confirmed – as Ms. Schaberg has repeatedly sworn in affidavits and testimony – that Ms. Schaberg and Mr. Walsh purchased their first marital residence at Arden Lane, Sands Point, New York, in 1983, for $900,000, more than a decade and a half before the alleged fraud. Then, as the Decision further finds, "[t]he Walshes sold 38 Arden Lane for approximately $4,500,000 and used $3,150,000 to purchase 7 Half Moon Lane in cash." 2010 WL 882875 at *1. Notably, the Half Moon Lane Property was titled solely in Ms. Schaberg's name from the time of its purchase in 1999 until she traded that Property for two allegedly tainted properties pursuant to her Property Settlement and divorce.

The Decision ordered the agencies to show cause by a date certain that the $900,000 in value of the Property attributable to the sale of the Arden Lane property is tainted by fraud. Otherwise, the first $900,000 netted from a court-ordered sale of the Property would be "available . . . to Walsh . . . for payment of reasonable attorneys' fees . . . if the Government cannot meet its burden" 2010 WL 882875 at *3. As the Letter makes clear, the agencies have failed to meet their burden of demonstrating that at least $900,000 of the value of the Property is untainted. See Letter at 1 (noting that "up to $900,000 of the proceeds from the sale of Property [is] to be used by Walsh for payment of his attorney's fees and costs . . .").

Thus, the parties have agreed, and the Court has found, that at least $900,000 of the value of the Property is untainted.

Ms. Schaberg's Mortgage is the senior and sole lien on the Property:
 The Mortgage is the senior lien on the Property, as the Property was purchased for cash and remained unmortgaged at least until Ms. Schaberg received the Mortgage in November 2006. Upon information and belief, the Mortgage remains the sole encumbrance on the Property today. Accordingly, Ms. Schaberg is entitled to be paid first, after all taxes, fees and expenses, but before Mr. Walsh. See, e.g., CPLR 5236; Bank Leumi Trust Co. of New York v. Liggett, 115 A.D.2d 378, 496 N.Y.S.2d 14 (1st Dep't 1985). Thus, Ms. Schaberg's senior interest in the Property must come out of the undisputedly untainted first $900,000 in net proceeds from the sale.

Accordingly, before any funds are released to pay Mr. Walsh's attorneys, the Receiver should be directed to pay Ms. Schaberg the full amount of her Mortgage and Mortgage Note.

Under these circumstances, Ms. Schaberg respectfully requests that the Court "So Order" her request as set forth in this letter, prior to the closing on the Property.

Respectfully submitted,

Steven L. Kessler

 09-CV-1750 (GBD)

Dear Mr. Welin:

As counsel for relief defendant Janet Schaberg in the referenced proceedings, we write regarding Ms. Schaberg's lien on the property located at 7 Half Moon Lane, Sands Point, New York, currently titled in the name of defendant Stephen Walsh. As you should be aware, pursuant to their November 1, 2006 Property Settlement, Mr. Walsh executed "a mortgage and mortgage note in favor of [Ms. Schaberg] . . . in the sum of $25,000" as additional security for his obligation to make $12.5 million in distributive award payments during a 15-year period (§4.5(e)(i)) ("the Mortgage"). The Mortgage was duly executed and recorded and is the first lien on the Half Moon property. See enclosed documentation.

It is our understanding that the Receiver is attempting to sell the Half Moon Lane property. We request that, upon the sale thereof, you promptly forward to this office a check in the sum of $25,000, payable to the undersigned as counsel for Ms. Schaberg.

Sincerely,

Steven L. Kessler
